Up To Somebody!

It is up to somebody to be thinking about where the money is coming from to run the government for the period of costly defense spending. Senator Harry Flood Byrd figures that the government will take in, counting the new defense taxes, around 6 billions, 500 millions. And the regular non-defense expenditures will exceed 7 billions, and the guess is that around fifteen billions will be spent in national defense. It is possible that the national debt will reach 65 billions by the end of the current fiscal year. In event that circumstances force us into war during 1941, the national debt will go to 100 billions by the end of that year. Now, Senator Byrd favors the expenditures for national defense. What he asks of the administration, and he is surely a sound request, is that the regular or non-military budget be balanced.

In this connection, it might be well to point out that a new crop of beneficiaries of federal aid is being hatched. Surely, the boys who will be drafted under the new selective service law, will not forget the payments former soldiers have received. The million or more men to be drafted now, will organize, and demand compensations in keeping with what other veterans have and seek to receive. We understand a movement has already started to offer to enrich dollar for dollar such bonuses of the drafee's pay check as he sends home to the folks.

We are not opposing any such plan. The United States always has been organized Veterans. The precedent is in the record. It takes a million a year now for the Veterans we already have, and before we are through with the present draft, the number of Veterans may be doubled.

Senator Byrd has fought bravely for financial soundness. For that reason, even if for no other, he is one of the most valuable men in public life today. Fight on, Senator, but while you are fighting, get some aspirin, for the billions will go at a dizzy pace from now on until sanity returns to this maddened world!

ANOTHER NAVAL SCHOOL

The first line of defense of the United States is its Navy. We have a good navy, but it is being enlarged so as to be able to defend both the Atlantic and Pacific waters. To double the size of the navy is more than a matter of building additional ships. A vast new officer personnel will be required. To that it occurs to us that we should have a second United States Naval Academy, similar to the one at Annapolis. The new academy should be located on the Pacific coast. In making its plans for the national defense, the Congress should provide for such a school at once.

THOSE NOT FIVE-POINTERS!

Each year the school children are given physical examinations on five essential health conditions. Those found satisfactory in these essentials are called five-point students, and get a ribbon, medal, certificate, "or something." That's swell! But, how about those found to be deficient in any out of nothing, and toiled twice as hard as we work to create happiness for their children. We honor them every time we assemble our families for such a gathering.—From Peninsula Enterprise.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Spout Spring, Va.

Editor Times Virginian,
Appomattox, Va.

Dear Sir:

In the September 12th issue of the Times Virginian, under Farm Topics you published an article, "Better Stock is Cross Bred." Purebred animals are not best producers, by L. H. Winters, of University Farm, St. Paul.

A lot of the "purebred philosophy" of 1920 referred to by Mr. Winters was based on big show records, with prices fixed by rich men, who were fanciers and didn't have to depend on livestock for a living, and a lot of other unsound practices, which were "bait for suckers." I agree with Mr. Winters that just because an animal is a purebred doesn't mean that he is a better animal. There are scrubs and runts in purebreds where they haven't been bred right. Closely inbred animals are likely to develop into runts or otherwise undesirable individuals in purebreds or cross breds.

But because a pig is smaller than an littermates at weaning time doesn't always mean he is a runt. Some of the best ones are smaller at weaning time.

A pig eats at the same location all the way through the nursing period after the first week, and every section of a sow's udder doesn't milk alike, so naturally the ones getting the weaker sections will be smaller, but if they are good pigs they will catch up when put on good feed.

Mr. Winters stated that "In the past years we have relied on type and body conformation as measuring sticks for profitable farm animals."

That statement indicates to me that either he is misinformed or that a lot of breeders have in the past been working on a mighty unsound basis. And any breeder of that type is due to fall.

If I understand his statement correctly, where he says, "We know now that speed and thrift of gains, size of litters, pounds of wool and lambs per ewe as well as pounds of butterfat produced are far more accurate tests of real efficiency," he must be a new man at the job or an old man badly behind time and thinks he has just discovered something.

Because, in my opinion, any breeder who in the past has overlooked, or is now overlooking the fact that the final end of any meat producing animal is the meat block, milk producing ones, milk and butterfat, and chickens, total number of marketable eggs, egg size, chick shape and quality, has overlooked the most important things and I don't believe the best purebred breeders have overlooked this fact, because they couldn't have made as much progress as they have if they had.

The thing livestock breeders of meat animals are working for and in my opinion should work for, is the most pounds of the choicest quality of the highest priced cuts of meat per animal, together with the ability to produce this meat rapidly, also the least number of pounds of feed consumed to the pound of meat produced and the ability to consume a lot of feed in case you want to make a big animal quickly.

When you have done this you have a uniform, well built animal that is good to look at and will stand any show that is judged on a sound basis.

* * * * * *

I have bred purebreds for a part of my living for 20 years and cross breds before then, and have found some cross breds in the last few years, as well a lot of purebreds for feeders to the same parties year after year, and if they didn't produce the desired results, my customers would buy from some one el

You can publish this letter in your paper if you wish to do so. There may be something in it that somebody would like to know.

Very truly yours,

G. A. Shirey.

The Promiseland church choir will observe its fourth anniversary beginning on Sunday, October 6th, through October 9th. The following program will be rendered during the week: Sunday night, Mount Zion choir, Red House, Rev. Yates speaker. Monday night, First Baptist choir, Rev. A.E. Jordan speaker. Tuesday night, a special program by the veterans of the local CCC camp. Wednesday night, Mount Peeler choir, Rev. H.H. Cabell, speaker. The local church choir will render a short literary program. A special rally has been planned for the anniversary.

A large crowd attended the regular preaching services held at the Galilee Baptist church last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Yates, preached a very helpful sermon from the text "I have come that you may have life more abundant." A large number of visitors attended.

The East and West Bound union will meet on the fifth Sunday in this month with the Mounts Pleasant Sunday School at Hixburg. A special program has been arranged by the executive committee of the union, that has valuable information for each Sunday School in the county. New schools in the county are invited to send delegates to the meeting.

The union opens at 10 A.M.

The local high school has made a very good start with the enrollment on the opening day reached 190. The enrollment is increasing each day.

THE BINDING FAMILY TIE

August and September are great months for family reunions. It is a pleasant old American custom, to ask the sisters, and the cousins, and the aunts, and the uncles and all the rest of them to gather at some meeting place of the clan, and look back to the parents and ancestors to whom they owe their existence and their homes in the best country on earth.

The family gathering of former years was apt to resort to what was called the "old family heartbutter," some home in which the family lived in former years. Countless sandwiches were consumed, the old timers reveled in the chance to tell their ancient stories again, and it was resolved that the family name was one of the most glorious that had ever adorned the pages of the country's history.

Today the families are scattered over the face of the earth, and it is not so easy to assemble them. They move around faster than they used to, and yet many splendid family reunions are being held.

A united family, whose members maintain friendship and keep up their contacts, is a tower of strength behind those whom it sends out into the world. When young people have behind them a group of relatives who are keenly interested in their progress, they find helping hands at many turns.

It is a wonderful thing to belong to a fine family, which has built up communities and maintained successful life and sent out men and women to do battle in the causes of right and justice. Let us keep up the good old family ties. We too often fail to realize the grand things done by our forefathers, who built a great country out of nothing, and toiled twice as hard as we work to create happiness for their children. We honor them every time we assemble our families for such a gathering.—From Peninsula Enterprise.

THE VOICE OF WISDOM

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 4:10-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life.—Proverbs 4:23.

What to do and how to do it—these are the vital things which the book of Proverbs imparts. It deals with every condition of life, good and bad, in the revealing light of God's holiness and love. Good advice may have its value, but we also need to know how to put it into practice. Therein is wisdom distinguished from knowledge. A man may have an unbelievably great store of knowledge, and yet be a foolish man because he does not have the wisdom to use it.

Knowing that these notes are used by a great many boys and girls, as well as by their teachers, the writer would suggest an outline for next Sunday which can be remembered by everyone who has ever crossed a railroad track. What does the warning sign say? "Stop, Look, and Listen." Then what? If all is clear, go ahead. That is just what our lesson tells us. Stop, for someone has a message for you; look, at the two ways of life; listen, to the wise words of counsel. Then go straight ahead in the right way.

I. Stop (vv. 10-13).

Life moves on at a rapid pace. One of the devices of the devil to gain and keep his hold on us is to keep things moving so fast that we never stop to think, or to heed the counsel of others. The wise man has something of importance to say to the young man whom he calls his "son." Let us stop and give heed to his warning, for we are assured that it will mean for us a long and happy life (vv. 10, 12).

Nobody but a fool would hasten past such a "stop" signal, nor thrust aside this opportunity for life-giving instruction (v. 13). Here is something far more important than mathematics, literature, or economics. Here is life.

II. Look (vv. 14-19).

There are really only two ways of life—"the path of the just . . . that shineth more and more unto the perfect day" (vv. 18), and "the way of the wicked," which is only darkness and stumbling (v. 19). There is no middle way. We cannot walk in both paths; it is "either—or." Young people should get hold of that fact, for in these days there is a constant attempt to blur the colors, making things neither black nor white, but gray; neither good nor bad, but just advisable or inadvisable.

The moral laws of God are not changed; right is still and will eternally be right, just as wrong is and always will be wrong. Wickedness is so wrong that it causes men to spend sleepless nights trying to entice others (v. 16). But no one need go that way; just do not "enter" that path, "avoid it," and if by chance you have wandered into it, "turn from it" (v. 15). God will help you.

III. Listen (vv. 20-25).

Listening is important business, calling for real attention and application. Especially is that true as one listens to the truth of God. It should be received by an attentive ear (v. 20), kept before one's eyes, and pondered in the heart (v. 21). Such listening is sure to bring results, and we find them enumerated in verses 22 to 25.

Life is assured to those who heed the words of God's messenger; not just a bare existence, but a healthy life (v. 22). God's spiritual children are not (or at least should not be) invalids or weaklings.

Keeping the heart right (v. 23) keeps the whole life right, and the way to be sure that the heart is right is to fill it with God's Word (v. 21). Then see how the whole life responds; the lips speak no forward (R. V. wayward) or preverse words, and the eyes look straight ahead along the shining path of the just.

Now that we have stopped to give attention to the Lord's word through His messenger, and looked carefully at the two ways of life, and listened to words of wisdom and guidance, what comes next? Do we stand idly by and commend ourselves for our wisdom, or do we sit down and take our ease? No. Being assured that the way is clear, we

IV. Go Ahead (vv. 26, 27).

God wants His people to move on to greater glory and usefulness. At the Red Sea, God told Moses, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

Move forward! valiant men and strong,
Ye have prayed and labored long;
The time has come for you to rise,
Thoughtful, vigilant, lest he be led into a bypath on the right or left, turning his feet away from every evil path, the child of God goes forward, and as he goes the road becomes brighter and brighter with the glory of the presence of the Lord, shining more and more until that perfect day when he shall find himself at the end of his journey and at home forevermore in the Father's house.

Evergreen Events

Evergreen, Sept. 17.- No rain of any consequence in September to date. Tobacco is mostly in the barns, much of it of inferior quality. Much lespedeza and other late hay being harvested.

There seems to be plenty of work for everybody.

The schools have opened with about the usual enrollment.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Comer were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Comer, of Lynchburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Harvey and children.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hamilton Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Farrar, of Petersburg; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Crawford and family, of Spout Spring; and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Basham Jr., of Lynchburg.

Mrs. Clara Ferguson Trovitsky, and husband, passed through Evergreen Sunday.

R. L. Pitchugh is indisposed at this time.

Mrs. Clarence Simmons is somewhat improved.

Mrs. J. D. Jennings has resigned her position in Lynchburg, and will be at home here permanently.

I called at the home of George Washington McCracken recently. Within a few weeks Mr. McCracken will celebrate his 80th birthday. Were I to judge his age by the large crop of corn and tobacco he has made this year, I would say he was not over 60. He has 12 or 15 hundred sticks of tobacco that should strip two pounds per stick, large, well-ripened plants. He also has a full crop of corn. Mr. McCracken has recently purchased a farm in the Stonewall section, and will move to his new farm in the near future. He said he had bought a light truck, and would drive it himself, though he has never driven anything more complicated than a horse-drawn vehicle. He seems to have discovered the foutain of youth!

Federal Highway Allocations

Virginia's share of the $134,000,000 Federal road allocation for 1942-43 will be $2,608,000, according to information received in Richmond. Of this amount, which is expected to be ready for distribution by December 1, $1,514,000 will be for regular Federal aid, $317,000 for secondary or feeder roads and $372,000 for grade crossing elimination. With the exception of allocations for grade crossings, all funds must be matched by the state.

Plans have been made to construct 3,000 miles of access roads at military reservations, and to improve 75,000 miles of the nation's strategic highways, as part of the national defense program. Location of these roads has not been announced.

WPA Funds Going For Defense

Street, sewer, school and park improvement projects which have been carried on with WPA funds in recent years, are gradually being brought to a standstill, with Federal funds going instead to defense projects throughout the state. A report from State WPA headquarters reveals that of the 19,000 men employed by the Works Progress Administration in Virginia at the present time, 2,721 are engaged on defense projects. A total of $2,688,102 has already been spent on these projects in the state, exclusive of WPA funds allocated directly to the Army and Navy. The prospect is that within a few months all available WPA labor in Tidewater Virginia will be occupied on defense projects.

Not Always Colic

If your infant wakes up and issues a series of piercing shrieks and you think it's colic, think again. Maybe the poor kid's just constipated.

This is suggested in an article quoted in the American Medical Association News by Dr. Frank C. Neff, of Kansas City, Mo.

Especially in the period of from one to three months of age do infants give manifestations resembling colic symptoms, such as hysterical crying. Complete quiet is more important than feeding changes in this case, Dr. Neff writes.

...BUT WHY COURT-MARTIAL THE WHOLE REGIMENT?

There are bound to be one or two bad soldiers in every regiment. But why court-martial the whole regiment?

The same applies to beer retailing. Out of hundreds of thousands of wholesome, law-abiding beer retailers, there is bound to be a small minority who disobey the law or permit anti-social conditions.

To protect your right to drink good beer, the Brewing Industry wants even this small minority of undesirable retailers eliminated entirely. Beer is a refreshing, appetizing beverage — the beverage of moderation. We want every beer retail establishment to be a wholesome as beer itself.

To that end, we have instituted a "clean-up or close-up" program — now in operation in some states and being extended to others. We'd like to tell you about it in an interesting free booklet.

"Build-Up" Relief Explained to Women

A simple method has saved many women a lot of suffering!

It is based on the fact that headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain are often symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition.

Help for this condition is on the way, follows the use of CARDUI, because it usually increases the appetite and the flow of gastric juice; thus aids digestion and helps build physical resistance. Usual result is less periodic distress.

Many who take CARDUI a few days before and during "the time" have found this helps ease periodic discomfort. Women have used CARDUI for more than 50 years!
